

I am writing to state that I believe the FCC should NOT implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. The law has benefited my family in two ways: My father is 82 years old with a bad leg. He does not constantly need to get up and down answering the phone to telemarketers. I've had his phoned blocked by Indiana's Privacy Law and I strongly suggest that this Law be left alone for my father's sake and other elderly people.

I work for a busy law firm and when I get home after an hour commute I do not want to sort through numerous messages on my answering machine nor do I want to contend with phone call from telemarketers either. I want my right to privacy upheld by the State of Indiana's laws.
